

The Secretary's Award of Achievement

The National Nuclear Security Administration's Los Alamos National Laboratory, National Security Sciences Building - Phase I Project is presented this award for demonstrating significant results in completing a project within cost and schedule. The $93 million project was completed three months ahead of the original baseline schedule and well under budget. The design goal provided for a facility with low or no maintenance requirements that resulted in long-term durability, weather tightness and value.

Date: November 2006

Signature: Secretary Bodman