DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

Availability of the Final Environmental Impact Statement for Interim Management of Nuclear Materials at the Savannah River Site, Aiken, SC

AGENCY: U.S. Department of Energy.

ACTION: Notice of availability of final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS).

SUMMARY: The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) announces the availability of a Final EIS entitled "Interim Management of Nuclear Materials, Savannah River Site, Aiken, South Carolina," DOE/EIS-0220. The Final EIS evaluates the potential environmental impacts of actions necessary to safely manage nuclear materials at the Savannah River Site (SRS) over the next ten years. The Final EIS was prepared in accordance with the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) of 1969; Council on Environmental Quality regulations implementing NEPA, 40 CFR Parts 1500-1508; and DOE NEPA Implementing Procedures, 10 CFR Part 1021.

The Final EIS has been distributed to the public and filed with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). An EPA notice of availability was published in the Federal Register October 20, 1995 (60 FR 54226). The Final EIS will also be available to the public in DOE reading rooms identified in this notice. DOE plans to issue a Record of Decision on the Final EIS no sooner than November 20, 1995.

ADDRESSES: Requests for copies of the Final EIS and for further information on the Final EIS should be directed to: Andrew R. Grainger, NEPA Compliance Officer, Savannah River Operations Office, U.S. Department of Energy, P.O. Box 5031, Aiken, South Carolina 29804-5031, telephone (803) 725-1523 or the Information Line (800) 242-8269.

General information on the DOE NEPA process may be obtained from Ms. Carol Borgstrom, Director, Office of NEPA Policy and Assistance (EH-42), U.S. Department of Energy, 1000 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20585-0119. Ms. Borgstrom may be reached by telephone at (202) 586-4600 or by leaving a message at (800) 472-2756.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

DOE issued the Draft Interim Management of Nuclear Materials EIS for public comment and the EPA published a Notice of Availability in the Federal Register on March 17, 1995 (60 FR 14432). DOE published a corresponding NOA for the Draft EIS on April 6, 1995 (60 FR 17523). The public comment period, which began with publication of the EPA NOA, ended on May 1, 1995. Two public meetings, one in North Augusta, South Carolina, and one in Savannah, Georgia, were held during the comment period. DOE revised the Draft EIS as appropriate in response to comments received electronically, in letters, and at the public meetings. DOE also considered a Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board (DNFSB) staff report dated August 3, 1995.

Comments on the Draft EIS were considered by DOE in preparing the Final EIS. Comments on the Draft EIS and DOE's responses to those comments are contained in Appendix F to the Final EIS.

The Final EIS, like the Draft EIS, addresses the potential environmental impacts of alternatives for the management of nuclear materials at the SRS for a period of 10 years. Ten years was selected as the period of analysis because it may require that period of time to make and begin implementation of decisions on the long-term storage or ultimate disposition of these nuclear materials.

Alternatives Considered

The purpose and need for the Department's action was to manage the nuclear materials at the Savannah River Site to eliminate (where possible) the vulnerabilities posed by the storage condition of the materials by taking action to alter the physical or chemical form of the materials or to improve the manner in which they are stored. The continued storage of some of these materials in their current condition might cause radiological exposure of workers or the public or contamination of the environment. In some cases, the material's physical or chemical form poses a problem; in other cases the material simply requires repackaging or movement to another location to ensure safe continued storage.

In the Final EIS, DOE has organized the inventory of nuclear materials at the SRS into three categories: stable materials, candidates for stabilization, and programmatic materials. Stable materials are already in physical and chemical forms that, combined with their storage configurations, do not currently pose an environmental, safety, or health concern and are not likely to pose a concern over the next 10 years. Materials that are candidates for stabilization are those for which DOE has identified a number of environmental, safety, and health vulnerabilities associated with their continued storage in their current physical state or the manner in which they are stored. Programmatic materials contain special isotopes that could be needed to support DOE programs. In many cases, the current forms of programmatic materials pose the same vulnerabilities as the candidates for stabilization.

Since stable materials do not require stabilization to ensure their continued safe management the only alternative considered was continued storage (no action). Under this alternative, DOE would maintain management facilities in good working condition and provide utilities and services, including trained personnel, to ensure the continuation of the current stable configuration of the materials and storage areas. Materials which are candidates for stabilization were further subdivided into seven categories. In the Final EIS, DOE evaluated alternatives for stabilization of each material in each of the seven categories. Alternatives evaluated in the Final EIS for the candidates for stabilization are processing to metal, processing to oxide, blending down to low-enriched uranium, processing and storage for vitrification (Defense Waste Processing Facility), vitrification (F-Canyon), improving storage, and continuing storage (no action). Alternatives evaluated for programmatic materials in the Final EIS are processing to metal, processing to oxide, processing and storage for vitrification (Defense Waste Processing Facility), vitrification (F-Canyon), and continuing storage (no action).

Preferred Alternatives

DOE selected the following preferred alternatives for each category and subcategory of nuclear material considered in the Final EIS:

Stable materials—Continued storage (no action)

Programmatic materials

Plutonium-242—processing to oxide
Americium and curium—continuing storage (targets); vitrification (F-Canyon) (solutions)

Neptunium—processing to oxide

Candidates for Stabilization

H-Canyon plutonium-239 solutions—processing to oxide
H-Canyon enriched uranium solutions—blending down to low-enriched uranium

Plutonium and uranium stored in vaults—four preferred alternatives (improved storage, processing to metal, processing to oxide, vitrification

(F-Canyon); selection to be based on inspection of material

Mark-31 targets—processing to metal
Mark-16 and Mark-22 fuel—

continuing storage (no action)

Other aluminum-clad targets—continuing storage (no action)

Taiwan Research Reactor and Experimental Breeder Reactor II targets—processing to metal

DOE considered environmental factors, programmatic requirements, costs, management schedules, and other factors described in the Final EIS in determining the preferred alternatives for management of the nuclear materials at the SRS. DOE is continuing to evaluate alternatives for management of Mark-16 and Mark-22 fuels and other aluminum-clad targets and will announce selection of a stabilization alternative (other than "no action") at least 30 days prior to issuing a record of decision for the management of these materials.
