General Comment

As a person who knows the risks of this project, I consider that marine life is even more important than economic benefits, animals are part of what the planet is and we know very well that there is a chain and if it is broken to a large extent it will bring great consequences, their life is valuable and ignoring it just for something economic does not seem the right thing to do, We have to think more about the impact that this project is going to have in a negative way and not the "good" that it is said is gonna be. It doesn't worth it.
