General Comment

I would like to state my absolute rejection and horror surrounding this project. Having all the precedents we have (I'm thinking of Louisiana and Texas, among many other sacrifice zones in the US, Mexico and the world) having all the data and information, and just real life experience, logic, intelligence and frankly, plain common sense, how is it possible that this is even up for debate? The environmental damage of this project is proven. There's already a hidric crisis in the region. There a lack of transparency and consultation of local communities. This project is not creating new jobs or progress, it a shameless cash grab that will enrich a few people, displace hundreds of sustainable jobs and cause a genocide that will have impacts that will outlast us all. Please stop this, there's still time.
