General Comment

I find it deeply disappointing and frankly disgusting that Mexico Pacific Limited LLC is seeking to extend the deadline for commencing its LNG export operations. This amendment is not just a bureaucratic request—it's an attempt to prolong a project that represents environmental harm, extractivism, and corporate disregard for climate justice and local communities.

Re-exporting liquefied natural gas only deepens global dependence on fossil fuels at a time when the world must urgently transition away from them. Projects like this put profit over people, ignore indigenous and local voices, and contribute to ecological degradation across borders. The delay in operations should not be granted—it should be used as an opportunity to halt these harmful activities altogether.

I strongly urge decision-makers to reject this amendment and reconsider the broader implications of supporting fossil fuel infrastructure under the guise of economic development.
