General Comment

I strongly oppose the Saguaro LNG project due to its devastating environmental and social implications. The increased maritime traffic it would generate poses a serious threat to marine life, particularly to endangered whale species in the Gulf of California, one of the world's most biodiverse marine ecosystems. The project risks disrupting migratory routes, increasing deadly ship strikes, and causing underwater noise pollution that harms cetaceans. Additionally, it ignores the voices of local coastal communities, including fishers and Indigenous groups, who depend on a healthy sea to survive and were not properly consulted. This project prioritizes short-term profit over long-term ecological balance and human rights, and it must be stopped.
