General Comment

The Gulf of California, also known as the Sea of Cortés, isn't just a tourist spot. I've seen its biodiversity with my own eyes—just a few miles off the shore, no fancy gear, just goggles. There are giant rays in the region... it's unreal, like watching a building glide beneath your feet.

We humans are so small—and so selfish—obsessed with economic growth.

Drop the project. Save the ones who don't have a voice.

From a mexican, atty and habitant of the planet.
