

Alaska Native Village Energy Development Workshop October 21-23, 2013

Presented by:

U.S. Department of Energy Office of Indian Energy Policy and Programs and Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy Tribal Energy Program

Co-sponsored by:

University of Alaska-Fairbanks and Alaska Center for Energy and Power

This workshop is designed to help Alaska Native villages and corporations understand the range of energy efficiency and renewable energy opportunities that exist in their remote communities. Part of an overall effort to further support and encourage accelerated clean energy resource development in Alaska Native villages, the workshop will cover topics such as:

- Strategic energy planning
- Clean energy project development and financing
- Technology updates
- Energy efficiency
- Weatherization

The workshop will be held at the University of Alaska-Fairbanks Wood Center Ballroom prior to the Alaska Federation of Natives Conference scheduled for October 24-26. The workshop is co-sponsored by the University of Alaska-Fairbanks and the Alaska Center for Energy and Power (ACEP).

Registration

There is no cost to attend the workshop, but participants will be responsible for their own lodging, meals, and transportation. Advance registration is requested. Register online at:
