Clean Line has failed to meet any criteria required for the DOE to participate in the Pleains & Eastern transmission project under the Section 1222 of the 2005 EAct.

The studies cited by CLEP in its application do not prove any actual or projected increases in demand for this type of transmission capacity. Hypothetical exercise at best. Any actual benefits to the general public are far outweighed by the burdens and impacts it will have on them.

You can not bank on the wind blowing. You can not bank on this Clean Line Energy.
I suggest not going forward with this project, it has too much of an environmental impact and a personal impact.

Thank you,
