I. 2 CFR Part 200 and Part 910: Know Your Requirements

Finance can be defined as the art and science of managing money. Virtually all individuals and organizations earn or raise money and spend or invest money. Finance is concerned with the process, institutions, markets and instruments involved in the transfer of money among and between individuals, businesses and governments. For those who work with federal funds, a deeper understanding of federal financial regulations will allow you to make better financial decisions. All organizations benefit when they have a financially knowledgeable staff involved in the day-to-day operations of the finance department. A knowledgeable staff will make better financial decisions when they are trained to see the total picture than those who do not understand the regulation requirements. In financial administration, “it’s not just how we do the job, but also why we do things that is important.”

Organizational success is often measured by the accomplishment of its goals. Successfully managing the financial resources of the organization maximizes the amount and availability of funds to accomplish these goals. These two perspectives are linked together.

A total financial management system is comprised of three major elements or functions.

- First is the budget process. Budgeting is the appropriating of fiscal resources to accomplish program goals within a single year’s period of time.
- Second is the accounting of the resources. The purpose for accounting is to identify and report all revenues and expenditures that occur during the current year and reporting this information to all interested parties.
- Third is auditing. An audit examines the year’s activities to ensure compliance to the regulations regarding how money was expended and if there were proper controls in operation to safeguard these assets.

Accountability for fiscal resources is a critical concern for all organizations. Both private and public organizations have audits; install internal controls and checks and balances to protect their organizations money. Accountability for all assets whether the asset is cash, materials, and fixed or movable assets must be accounted for and protected. The auditing process includes the evaluation of these internal controls as well as stating the financial position of the organization. The auditor’s opinion also displays a listing of any findings the auditor noted during the audit. The audit document is an important source of information to the organization’s strategic partners such as granting agencies, banking and financial communities, and potential funders.

The purpose of the Federal financial management regulations is to ensure that government funds are used by governments and organizations efficiently and effectively to provide the services and/or goods authorized by the Federal agency that awarded the funds. They also ensure that the governments and organizations financial management systems provide accurate, reliable, and timely financial information to the Federal government.

The management of a Department of Energy, Weatherization Assistance Program grant or subgrant requires a working knowledge of the financial assistance rules and regulations and basic cost principles of the Department of Energy. Department of Energy rules and regulations are contained in Title 2 of the Code of Federal Regulations (2 CFR) and 2 CFR Part 910.

2 CFR Part 200 establishes uniform administrative requirements, cost principles, and audit requirements for Federal awards to non-Federal entities (NFE).

2 CFR Part 910 supplements the requirements of 2 CFR Part 200 with additions that include:

- Expanding the definition of non-Federal entity for the Department of Energy (DOE) to include For-profit entities,
- Adding back additional coverage from 10 CFR part 600 required by DOE statute, and
- Adding back coverage specific for For-Profit entities which existed in 10 CFR Part 600 which still applies.

Following is a summary of the financial management regulations. Specific questions should be researched in the complete 2 CFR Part 200 and 910.

Financial Assistance Rules

200.301: Performance Measurement - The Federal awarding agency must require the recipient to relate financial data to performance accomplishments of the Federal award.

When applicable, recipients must also provide cost information to demonstrate cost effective practices.

Rebates, refunds, contract settlements, audit recoveries, and interest must be used first before requesting an advance.

All advances must be placed in an interest bearing account unless the non-Federal agency receives less than $120,000 in Federal awards, interest earned would not exceed $500 per year, depository requires a high average or minimum balance, or a foreign government or banking system prohibits or precludes interest bearing accounts.

There are three methods for treatment of program income:

- Deduction
- Addition
- Cost sharing or matching

If the Federal award does not specify in its regulations or terms and conditions of the Federal award, the program income will be deduction.

For Institutions of Higher Education or non profit research institutions if not specified the program income will be addition.

If addition or cost sharing or matching methods are authorized any program income in excess of any amounts specified must also be deducted from expenditures.

Financial management is an important part of every successful organization. Proper financial management increases the success of every organization. While financial management may focus upon numbers, its outcome results in better services to individual community members.
